

ASQRS College Scholarship Program

The ASQRS Scholarship Committee invites scholarship applications for the 2003 to 2004 academic year. Up to four $1000 scholarships will be awarded, to be presented at the 60th Annual ASQRS Quality Conference on March 30, 2004. The eligibility requirements are:

1. Be a child of an ASQ Rochester Section member or be a permanent resident of Genesee, Livingston, Monroe, Ontario, Orleans, Seneca, Wayne, or Wyoming counties of New York State.
2. Be enrolled in the junior or sophomore year of college studies.
3. Submit the application by January 15, 2004.

Scholarship application forms may be obtained from the Rochester section web site at www.asqrs.org, or by contacting Brian Stimson by phone (585-453-5070) or by e-mail (bstimson@ocdus.jnj.com).

The scholarship program is the major outreach activity of the Rochester section, which began awarding college scholarships in 1961 with two $150 scholarships in honor of Mason E. Westcott, chair of the Statistics Department at the Rochester Institute of Technology. These awards were presented to faculty-selected recipients at RIT and Monroe Community College. A second award, in honor of RIT Professor Austin Bonis, was subsequently added for RIT students.

In 1991 the Rochester Section established a substantial scholarship fund from the proceeds of a very successful Juran seminar, organized by the ASQRS Education Committee. Students at Nazareth College, St. John Fisher College, and the University of Rochester were added to those eligible for scholarships. All recipients were selected by their school's faculty and received $1000 awards.

In 1993 two scholarships were added for children of section members. Recipients of the additional awards were selected by the ASQRS Scholarship Committee. Beginning in 1996, the ASQRS Scholarship Committee assumed responsibility for establishing the eligibility criteria and selecting the scholarship recipients, based on standard procedures and practices.

Current members of the Scholarship Committee include Joan Alliger, B.J. Coons, Ivan Enstrom, Bob Meisel, Dave Schreiber, and Brian Stimson. For committee members, a unique benefit of participating in the scholarship program is the opportunity to meet and talk with the scholarship recipients—college students who believe in themselves and in their ability to succeed.

Letters from members: The newsletter was late!

A member wrote to say that the September issue arrived in his office on October 3 and asked for a list of the dinner meeting dates for the year.

We mail the newsletter in time to announce the meetings, but it is not mailed first class. Both the post office and corporate mail rooms hold bulk rate mail. The solution? Rely on the web site, www.asqrs.org, and on our email list. The calendar of meetings for the year is posted on the Dinner Meetings page on our web site.

We send e-mail reminders at least once a month to members who have subscribed to the section's e-mail list. To subscribe or unsubscribe, visit www.asqrs.org/maillinglist.htm. If you have subscribed, but have not been receiving messages, your company may not be allowing the messages to be delivered. You may want to change your email address and receive the reminders at home. Please visit the mailing list page and send a message to the webmaster with your email address change.

Message from the chair

by B.J. Coons

Quality professionals are always faced with the challenge to make and document change while maintaining objectivity. This is a difficult task for a quality engineer who is participating in and leading project teams as well approving changes and quality improvements.

The change control system is the only effective way to document and maintain objectivity for any change. The change control system must be clear and concise. It must include procedures to ask appropriate questions to effectively verify or validate new systems, products or processes. It must also be generic enough to be used across organizations within a company, completely replacing potentially inconsistent department or divisional processes.

In addition an effective change control system must be adequate to implement change in a timely manner. However, we must be cautious when we measure timeliness. The system must be in place long enough to get data not confounded by training or lack of comfort from new users.

How do we measure the system? The key is documentation. Ask yourself if the objective evidence is clearly documented. Could someone from outside the organization pick up the documented evidence and understand what was changed, why it was changed, what the risk is to the customer for making the change and how the change was verified?

If your change control system provides documentation to effectively answer these questions then you have a mechanism in place to maintain objectivity and protection for your customer.

If your calendar magnet was damaged by removing it from the post card mailer, please contact the Chair to request a replacement:
BJ53@rochester.rr.com.

The Executive Committee would like to publish the newsletter online only. We plan email notification on our distribution list when each issue is posted. If you need a printed newsletter please contact the editor ann@annl Wiley.com.

Dinner meeting report

At the October 23 meeting, 35 people heard Dr. Rita Ratcliffe, chair of the Health Care Task Group, present cases of medical errors, explain systemic causes, and suggest improvement methods and prevention strategies for health care consumers.

Executive Committee report

The Executive Committee met on October 21. We are planning more joint programs, hospital and plant tours, and potentially a science fair. ASQ sections will have new, simplified bylaws next year. All members are welcome to attend meetings of the Executive Committee. Please contact the Chair, B.J. Coons, BJ53@rochester.rr.com.

60th Annual Quality Conference Call for Papers extended to November 17

The ASQRS Conference Committee is seeking 60-minute presentations (lecture, tutorial, or case study format) on the following topics for our 60th Annual Quality Conference.

Lean—real life examples of lean projects, presented for new and intermediate practitioners

Six Sigma—the statistical toolbox

Quality 101—presentations on basic quality principles, for example, cost of quality, maintaining quality, making measurable improvements, statistical process control

The Multidisciplined Employee—presentations on coping with expectations of “wearing multiple hats,” for example, the manufacturing supervisor who is responsible for quality and cost

Design and development quality—presentations on ensuring quality in the design and development stages of new products and processes

A presentation topic abstract of 250 words or less and a speaker biography of 100 words or less are due by November 17, 2003. Please indicate the level of your presentation: basic, intermediate, or advanced.

Receipt will be acknowledged and notification of acceptance made by November 30.

Submit to asqrs_committee@yahoo.com. Address questions to Dave Auda, 585-759-5630 or Anwar El-Homsi, 585-750-8230.

Freund Scholarship for graduate study

The Freund scholarship is awarded annually by ASQ to one or more individuals for graduate study of the theory and application of quality control, quality assurance, quality improvement, and total quality management. Both members and non-members are eligible. The approximate amount of the award is $5000.

To obtain information and an application call ASQ at 800-248-1946 and request item B0499 or download the application from www.asq.org/join/about/awards/freundscholar.html.

The Freund scholarship honors the late Richard A. Freund, president of ASQ in 1972–73. You can read about his career at Eastman Kodak Company and RIT and his many contributions to quality at www.asq.org/join/about/history/freund.html.

Membership report

As of mid-October the Rochester Section had 708 members. Please welcome our new members who joined in September.
